ground, selecting cottages, looking ahead at the hotels.

Tuxedo has had one of the gayest of winters, its spring schedule is full and talk of what is to be done in summer is already in the air. Winter sports of all kinds have made life at Tuxedo this year almost ideal and the continued bad weather which has marked week ends has somehow treated Tuxedo much more kindly than other places, for there has been no cessation of winter enjoyments. Uninterrupted fine skating, toboganning. skiing and a succession of dinners and dances, with cards whenever time can be found for cards-what more could the heart of man desire?

The days of dances are numbered. or, to speak more correctly, the weeks or there is yet more than a fortnight luring which it will be fashionable to tence dance that is by invitation at private or subscription dances. New forkers are quite remarkable in their letermined stand to regard Lenten dancing as being unfashionable.

But the dancing fever once in the blood is not easily eradicated and to dance in public is permitted by even strict observers of Lent, so that it is not too late even now to take a few more lessons in the newest steps. The money will not be thrown away and with so many people skating there is all the more room and opportunity for the dancers. Suffragists and Antis the Suffragist ball, from which en-tertainment men are not to be excluded; on the contrary, they will be gladly welcomed.

So many pleasures are now within the reach of the simplest household that the season of fasting and prayer need not be dreaded even by those who do not find it possible to include the Southern trip even in their winter's record. And there is a well founded rumor going the rounds that a determined effort is to be made to render this Lent attractive for the stay at homes. Several delightfully exclusive bridge clubs have been formed luncheon and discussion clubs have been organized, dinner and theatre clubs have been made up, until pad of a woman who is active in social matters discloses that there are few dates left to fill for weeks to come. and those unfilled have been purposely At vacant for the most delightful affairs—those that crop up unexpect-edly and to which one is bidden on he spur of the moment.
